In-House eDiscovery for Law Firms Large and Small

Recent legal trends and improvements of technology make it possible for law firms to control and manage their clients' electronically stored information internally, thus better protecting clients' sensitive information and reducing or eliminating dependence on expensive outside eDiscovery vendors.

Differentiate your law firm by developing defensible and repeatable in-house capabilities to collect, review, produce, and present electronic evidence at trial. Incrementally bring more eDiscovery services in-house for better quality of work, control of the process, increased law firm revenue and cost savings for your clients.

Tom Howe has been a practicing attorney for over 25 years, licensed in Washington and Oregon. He helps law firms, corporations, and government clients with electronic discovery.
